BIODYNAMIC 🌙

The biodynamic agricultural or farming method is based on the premise that there is an interconnected, or “dynamic”, relationship between all things in our universe. A vineyard can be self-sustaining with a self-sufficient ecosystem and yield high quality grapes. This can only be achieved through specific vineyard management and the use of particular applications that account for ecological, spiritual and energetic principles. Biodynamic wine is made solely from practices that consider and use both the macro- and micro- fauna and flora that exist below and above the soil.

ORGANIC 🌿

Wines of this nature are produced without using conventional pesticides, fertilizers, and synthetic ingredients including waste material, bioengineering, or ionizing radiation. Organic produce is part of an integrated agricultural ecosystem that is sustainable, humane and non-polluting.

SUSTAINABLE 🦋

The Maori word Toitiū (pronounced toy-TOO) refers to the life-force of the land and can be interpreted as meaning “eternally sustainable”. It represents New Zealand’s, as well as other countries, commitment to protecting the places that make their wines unique. These wines represent the vineyards that engage in this ‘best practice’ model of environmental sensitivity - it is an assurance, that from vineyard to bottle, consumer concerns regarding environmental preservation and care have been addressed. Currently, 96% of New Zealand wine is Certified Sustainable.
